"Long before mankind existed, the Old Ones trod upon the Earth"...and so commences the Gothic musical journey of Nox Arcana's newest CD, NECRONOMICON. Inspired by the "Mad Arab" and H.P. Lovecraft, Joseph Vargo and William Piotrowski wrote this concept album based on the Cthulhu Mythos. For those not well-versed in the Necronomicon, this is a great 45-minute crash course on the prophecies of the Old Ones returning to the Earthly realm to wreck havoc on mankind, complete with a booklet containing follow-along text and illustrations. Learn about Yog-Sothoth, the keeper of the gates between our world and that of the dead. Discover mighty Cthulhu, high priest of the Old Ones, and await his return when the stars are aligned just right. One can't help but get excited with these sinister symphonies for when the gate is opened once more.

Described as a mix of "Gothic choirs, Egyptian/Middle Eastern melodies and ominous chants," this compilation is deliciously sexy and seductive. Vargo's original artwork is captivating (and would make for some great tattoos). Piotrowski's proficiency in musical arrangements is evident in the flawless segues between pieces. Check out NECRONOMICON and Nox Arcana's debut CD DARKLORE MANOR at their official website.
